

Giving

by Angie

Vincent regarded his collection of tiny magnet mementos and suddenly realized he was remiss.

A visit to Mouse resulted in him rummaging through a very large cookie tin of oddments. He grinned as he found something singularly appropriate. Then he visited the scrap fabric box, then Cullen for some glue.

The result was carefully wrapped in brown paper, inserted into a much used memo envelope and sent up to Benny for Catherine.

Her response when she came below later was everything he could wish.

'It is better to give than to receive,' he thought smugly, returning her kiss with interest.

