

Beauty and the Beast Tidbit (100 words)

by Angie

Fate's irony

Vincent was being stalked by a recent arrival. She seemed to be everywhere and left no doubts about her motive. Even his chamber wasn't sacrosanct. He could smell her scent there now.

Intolerable! He would have to discourage her.

When she followed him down an empty tunnel later, he abruptly turned and snarled at her, displaying all his canines and scowling fiercely. He felt her shock.

He sighed inwardly as he strode away, alone. His differences once seemed to love impossible. Ironic that he now had to discourage a female admirer!

Catherine would smile knowingly. So he wouldn't tell her.