

Fear Not The Dark

by Jodie Boyle

On this night of a thousand candles
Fear not the dark
At our Winterfest feast
Know that you are not a stranger
But a beloved Tunnel Sister, and friend

When someone asks you to dance
Please glide into his waiting arms
Should a hand reach for you
Place it softly in the other's hand
For he is the one who loves you so

Lend your ears to a Bard
Speaking words of love, written long ago
Let your heart take flight
As you look into his eyes

Go boldy into the night!
For there is always light surrounding you
By the flame of the multi-coloured candle you hold
In the warmth and kindness of friends
The eternal light of your Love's heart

Take this one tiny candle
When the Great Hall has closed
Pass the spark to new souls
Light it often
Look upon it, happily

For, it is alive, igniting, sparkling
A beacon glowing
For those who wish to see it
Oh, let those seekers come!
