

Will You Be My Valentine, Forever?

By Anony Mouse

For Valentine's Day 2019, On Treasure Chambers

I found a bit of chocolate
I found a pretty bow.
I tied it up and set it here,
Where only you will know.

I found a book of Shakespeare,
And inscribed it just for you.
“With love’s light wings,” and other things.
You know that it’s all true.

I mined for earth-deep crystal,
I reached skyscraper heights.
I wound my ways, eschewed the days,
Embraced the moonlit nights.

I left Great Expectations
Beneath your wide window.
I brought you tea, I'll bring you me,
Above, and then Below.

I saw a rose of brightest white.
I saw a rose of red.
I dream of both in your bouquet
The day that we are wed.

Yes, I'll be your Valentine, Forever.

I walked with you on Samhain night
And splendors showed to you.
I hoped you'd see my world's beauty,
But you already knew.

I brought you Idylls of the King,
My strength, my love, my will;
I even brought you Rolley,
With half a hundred dollar bill.

I gave “a few old things” away
With price tags still attached.
And the life I knew, to be with you,
And prove we’re so well-matched.

I sewed a pouch of leather,
To hold a small keepsake.
This rose won’t fade. Our Bond is made
Both sleeping and awake.

I saw a rose of deepest red.
I saw a rose of white.
I’ll bring you both in my bouquet -
And on our wedding night.
