

Ethereal Rose

by Angie

While Vincent searched his world for inspiration, Catherine explored a favourite thrift store, hopefully, for his gift.

She ignored most of what filled the place, instead rummaging through little baskets of knick-knacks. In one she found a badly-glued keychain attached to something glassy. She almost whooped when she uncovered it, marvelling at the technology. Perfect!

She put it in a small cloth gift bag from the same source, and presented it to him on April 12.

His reaction was everything she could have hoped.

"Ethereal," he remarked examining it from all directions.

"Unlike you," he added, giving her a kiss.

