

Pen Holder Mod 2

by Angie

Vincent returned to his chamber after lunch to discover a colourful object on his table. And someone had stuck his fountain pen in it! He picked it up and realized had been crocheted. He suspected he knew by whom.

Nevertheless, it did keep his pen where he could find it, upright, in sight, and safe. He added two more. The holder was a cheerful addition to his otherwise cluttered table. It would treat his pens gently, which Samantha's ceramic one definitely did not. THAT would now admirably anchor newspaper clippings from draughts.

Everything had a use in time, he mused.
