

Making Amends

by Angie

Aslan from the Narnia books was little Cathy's hero. Her mother bought her a stuffed lion and Cathy cuddled it in bed.

When her mother died, and Cathy had felt betrayed by both lions. She hid her stuffed lion in a box in her closet.

Then one night, her father drove her slowly through the Park. She saw an unusual boy staring at the moon. He looked at her and she started to cry, reminded of her lions and her mother.

Catherine looked down at the stuffed lion she was taking to the children. It was time to make amends.

