

Letters Never Sent

by Judith Nolan

Catherine kept a small bundle of letters hidden away. Over the last ten years, she'd poured love through every line and page. Confessions, hopes, tender words too vast for her voice. Secrets longings and needs that she still hesitated to express verbally. Though her love would never read the letters, she smiled whenever she added to them.

For Vincent already knew her heart. Every wish and need had been tucked away. Their bond made paper and ink unnecessary. When his eyes met hers, when his hand found hers in the shadows, every letter was already written in their mirrored souls.