Not Forgotten

Chamber of Remembrance

“Everyone must leave something behind when he dies . . . Something your hand touched some way so your soul has somewhere to go when you die . . . and when people look at that ... you're there. It doesn't matter what you do, so long as you change something from the way it was before you touched it into something that's like you after you take your hands away.”
— Ray Bradbury, Fahrenheit 451

An actor named Constantin Stanislavski once said, “There are no small parts, only small actors.”

When it comes to Beauty and the Beast there certainly were no “small” actors, no small players, and no small people who took part in bringing the production to life. Everyone who participated in the creation of that beautiful show, became forever an irreplaceable part of the magic and romance that captivated us from the beginning. Though the show only aired for three seasons, it has taken up residence in the hearts and minds of fans around the world for much, much longer.

Sadly, many of the actors, and creators who contributed to the enchantment that has held us captive for the last thirty years, have passed away. But they have left something of themselves behind, in the countless videos and DVD’s that have been distributed throughout the world. Whether the parts they played were large or small, good or evil, pivotal or minor, though gone from us, their echoes linger on not only in characters of the original episodes, but some of the characters they played have found new life, in fanfiction and fan art. There, some of those characters have found new choices, and sometimes even redemption, at the hand and pen of fan fiction writers and artists.

To the original writers, musicians, actors, make-up artists, and wardrobe people, the ones who breathed life into the characters, the ones who teased our imagination, and inspired us to keep telling stories, to take the work they did and extend it, allowing the characters to breathe with new life, and new lines, we thank you. We all owe you a debt we can never repay. We try to honor your performances and contributions, by staying true to the characters you created. We try to honor you.

If there is a better tribute to the skill of a writer, director or actor, I’m not sure I know what it is. If there’s a higher compliment paid to the ones who helped bring magic to a screen, I’m not sure I know what form it takes.

We remember you, and we remember the work of your hands, the mark you left on the world, with love.

To all who helped create the beautiful dream that was Beauty and the Beast, you have inspired us to keep the dream alive. For that, we thank you.

And especially for those who are no longer with us... You may be gone, but you are never forgotten.
